UNITED STATES FOOD ADMINISTRATION

WASHINGTON, D. C.

October 1, 1917.

DR. JOSEPH KRAUSKOPF,
Department of Co-operating Organizations of U. S. Food Administration.

My dear Dr. Krauskopf:

Your very kind invitation to address The National Farm School has been brought to my notice. Nothing would give me more pleasure than to attend. But you, yourself, through your connection with the United States Food Administration at Washington, are fully conversant with the pressure of the work here, and can readily appreciate how very unwilling I am to quit my desk, even for a day, at this critical stage in our plans of organization.

The great work The National Farm School is doing under your leadership is widely and most favorably known, and I will welcome the first convenient opportunity to pay it a visit.

The work of conserving food is contingent upon its production, and its production depends, I feel, not so much on the number of producers as upon how well they are trained. In inculcating a love of the soil and an accurate knowledge of the "How" in agriculture, your Institution is performing an invaluable national service, and I wish for you the continuation of a most deserved success.

Yours faithfully,

(Signed) HERBERT HOOVER.

TO FARM IS TO ARM

TWENTIETH ANNUAL MESSAGE

To the Members of THE NATIONAL FARM SCHOOL

By its Founder and President

THE REV. DR. JOSEPH KRAUSKOPF

October 7, 1917

OUR NATION BUCKLES ON ARMOR.

A year ago, when last we met in annual session, we offered up a prayer of thanksgiving that our beloved America was serene and secure against the debacle of civilization—against War—the all consuming monster. We rejoiced that our Republic had not drawn the sword, and we dared to hope that the sword would remain unsheathed by us forever.

To-day we meet amidst the clamor and tumult of war. America is buckling on its armor to enter the fray. Already blood of ours may be drenching some far-off battlefield; already our flag floats high and proud, somewhere in France, where the flower of our manhood is preparing to take its place alongside of our allies in the trenches. In a score of encampments, scattered throughout the country, a million of our youth, chosen democratically, taken equally from among the most favored of fortune and from the ranks of the humblest, are democratically assembled, to learn the new, the paramount business of America —the business of war.

THE NATION BEHIND THE PRESIDENT.

Here is neither the time nor the place to enlarge upon the war's causes or justifications. Here we are all in accord with the great leader who is our Commander-in-Chief. We, who sustained him when yet he stayed the hands of the impatient, we, who sustained him when, despite clamor and criticism, he counselled peace, sustain him, with equal devotedness, now that he has let slip the dogs of war. To us, assembled here, the President of the United States personifies the greatness and the glory of America, and we rally to Woodrow Wilson, asking only how we, too, may serve in order that peace may speedily be restored into a war-sick world.

NOT ALL CAN SERVE AT THE FRONT.

This, I am confident, is the thought uppermost in the minds of those of us who are gathered here to-day, as it is uppermost in the minds of millions of others, who would willingly make the supreme sacrifice for our country's sake, but who are bidden, in ways of peace, to perform such duties as will contribute to the success of the business of our necessitated war. Barred from donning the khaki, from shouldering the rifle, from taking places in the line of battle and in the trench, what are we to do, what service can we render to uphold our country's cause, to bring victory not only to this democracy, but also to the democracies of the world? Shall we retrench? Shall we practice economy? Shall we speed up the machineries which will increase the military resources of the land? These things we shall do gladly! Shall we give of our treasure? Shall we buy Liberty Bonds as freely as we would dividend-paying stocks and bonds? That we have done and shall do without stint, without misgiving! Shall we pay double and treble taxes? That, too, we shall do, cheerfully, eagerly! Shall we check our natural desire for large profits? It is the least sacrifice we can make when we think of the youth of our land, ready and willing to surrender their chief asset, their entire capital—life—for the sake of America!

MANY CAN SERVE ON FARM.

There is one other thing we can do, perhaps the greatest of all. We can practice Conservation—the husbanding of all our vast energies, of all our vast resources, and their increase.

Wars are no longer won by the hurling upon the enemy of vast hordes of men alone. Wars are no longer won by armies alone, nor by steel and lead, nor by naval and air fleets, nor by superior strategy and tactics. We have seen a great war-machine, the building of which consumed nigh a half-century, drilled and munitioned to the last degree of efficiency, fail. Germany is balked, because behind the vast military machine writhes a people wanting the necessaries of life. When hunger is abroad in the land, when grain and potatoes and meat and milk are luxuries almost beyond price, the proudest army must be humbled, and the flaunting defiant banners must trail in the dust.

Hence, it follows that the best, the highest service we can render is to conserve, yea, to increase, for our beloved country the staple necessities, to place the danger of hunger far from us. Thus shall we add valor to our courageous armies, strength to their prowess, and make the victory swift and sure.

FARM SECRET OF NATION'S STRENGTH.

Much is being done already. Our national capital is a vast hive of industry. The great National Defense Council with Bernard Baruch and Julius Rosenwald is accomplishing the wonders of Aladdin. Hoover, the savior of Belgium, is doing a Titan's work in protecting the country's food supply—a work toward which it is the great privilege of this School, to make some slight contribution. But all of this wonderful work will not suffice if the source of supply—the fountain-head from which flows the life-stream of the nation's strength—the farm, shall be neglected. Already, the farmers of the nation have been mustered into this service, and the mere suggestion of what is their part in this war has caused them to increase the supply of staples, in some instances to as much as 30%. A splendid beginning, yet not enough. For we shall have to feed, not only ourselves, but all of our allies, if this war is to drag on a still longer number of years.

PEOPLE SLOW TO RECOGNIZE IT.

For years, ever since and even before the foundation of THE NATIONAL FARM SCHOOL, its Founder and President called attention to the monstrous waste of America's resources, of its vast farm desolation, of its monstrous city congestion. He inveighed against the inequity of a system that crushed out lives in the tenements, and kept barren millions of acres that longed to give life in return for being given life. He pointed to the tuberculosis sanatoria, to the myriad of early graves, to the relief institutions, to the bread lines, to the poverty, to the degradation, and pleaded for the means to bring about an intimate relationship between the city-dweller and the fertile fields. Here and there a willing ear was lent to his exhortations, else this institution would not have been called into being—would not now for twenty years have been doing its part toward alleviating an intolerable, a perilous situation. But not many ears were willing to listen and heed. For the most part, the idea upon which THE NATIONAL FARM SCHOOL is based, was dismissed as a dream, a hobby, a utopia, as unessential and unnecessary.

FARM SCHOOL VINDICATED.

But today we call upon those who have doubted, who have sneered, to stand up and acknowledge their error—we call upon them to witness the vindication of an idea. Well may we call this day Vindication Day. It took twenty years to convince the people that we were right.

Of course, it would have been better if the foresight of the people had been as good as their hindsight. Our institution today would have been far different from what it is now. Instead of its few buildings, there would have been scores of them; instead of cultivating but a few hundred acres, we would have cultivated several thousand; instead of a few hundred graduates, thousands of them would have been supplying the Nation with bread. We would not have been obliged to turn back, annually, scores of lads who were clamoring for admission to our School, but whom we could not admit, because of a lack of room to house them and of means to take care of them.

Even at this day, with demands for food producers greater than ever before in the history of our Nation, we have an enrollment of but seventy-five students, some twenty-five students less than we had a year ago, the high cost of everything having more than doubled the expense of running our institution and necessitating the reduction of students, inasmuch as our students, irrespective of creed, receive at our institution, not only their education, but also their board, lodging, and other necessities, free of all charge to them.

Having labored twenty years under such unfavorable conditions, the marvel is that we accomplished anything at all. Surely, God has been with us, even if the people were not.

TO FARM IS TO ARM.

To-day, in the midst of all the vast preparations for war, the world has come to realize that even as important as the man with the gun is the man with the hoe. TO FARM IS TO ARM—that is the slogan for us who cannot arm with sword and rifle and bayonet. We, too, must arm, with the plough, the reaper and the sickle. While the embattled youth of the land goes forth to do, to die, to win, we who stay behind must fill the granaries of the land, must cause our store-houses and our larders to overflow with plenteous harvests, so that want shall be unknown for our brave soldiers, and those of our allies.

SUCCESSFUL FARMING REQUIRES TRAINING.

The business of war is a highly specialized business, that we now realize. And the greatest business of peace—the business of farming—that, too, is a highly specialized calling. Even as we must train our soldiers, so, too, must we train our farmers. Two million men may go forth to farm, but untrained, unskilled, undrilled, they would go forth to failure.

For the past twenty years, this has been the insistent propaganda of THE NATIONAL FARM SCHOOL—"Train our Youth—Train them for the Farm, for the Good of our Country," was our constant appeal. At last, the basic idea upon which this institution rests is recognized. And, if the recognition of this truth will result in action, our institution may go forward from strength to strength, to render that maximum service to our country and to our people which is its highest aspiration. For the American Jew, the opportunity for a surpassing service to the United States is contained in THE NATIONAL FARM SCHOOL. By strengthening it, by making its progress real, he will be making a contribution as noble as that which his brother in arms is making to render this country forever safe.

SUCCESS OF FARM SCHOOL GRADUATES.

The world is in a better mood to-day to listen to our appeal, and we have a better story to tell than we ever told before. We cannot be accused of boastfulness, if we point to our record, to the scores of young men who have gone forth from us to practice and preach and teach the gospel and the skill they have acquired here. It is a list that is growing too long for recapitulation. Perhaps it will suffice if we name only one—that young man who went forth from this School a few years ago, and who made such a remarkable record as Director of the Agricultural High School of Minnesota that we could do no less than bid him return, and give here, to the hundreds who would follow in his footsteps, the knowledge and the skill that are so abundantly his. In Bernhard Ostrolenk, the new Director of THE NATIONAL FARM SCHOOL is personified the ideal which is our goal, and in the short time that he has been in charge here, he has written a glorious page in the already brilliant archives of THE NATIONAL FARM SCHOOL.

And the good work that he is doing here is duplicated by other graduates of our School at other places, and in other agricultural lines, by Dr. J. J. Taubenhaus, who is Chief Plant Pathologist of the Texas Experiment Station and author of five text books on the cause and control of various plant diseases; by Morris Mitzmain, who is directing entomological researches for our Government; by Max Fleisher, who is Superintendent of the Dairy Department of the New Jersey Training School, Vineland, N. J.; by Morris Salinger, who is Administrator of the Colonia Dora, Argentine Republic; by Charles Horn, who is Assistant Superintendent of the Philadelphia Vacant Lots Cultivation Association; by Max J. Colton, who is Rural Health Officer, of Cumberland, Md., and by numbers of others.

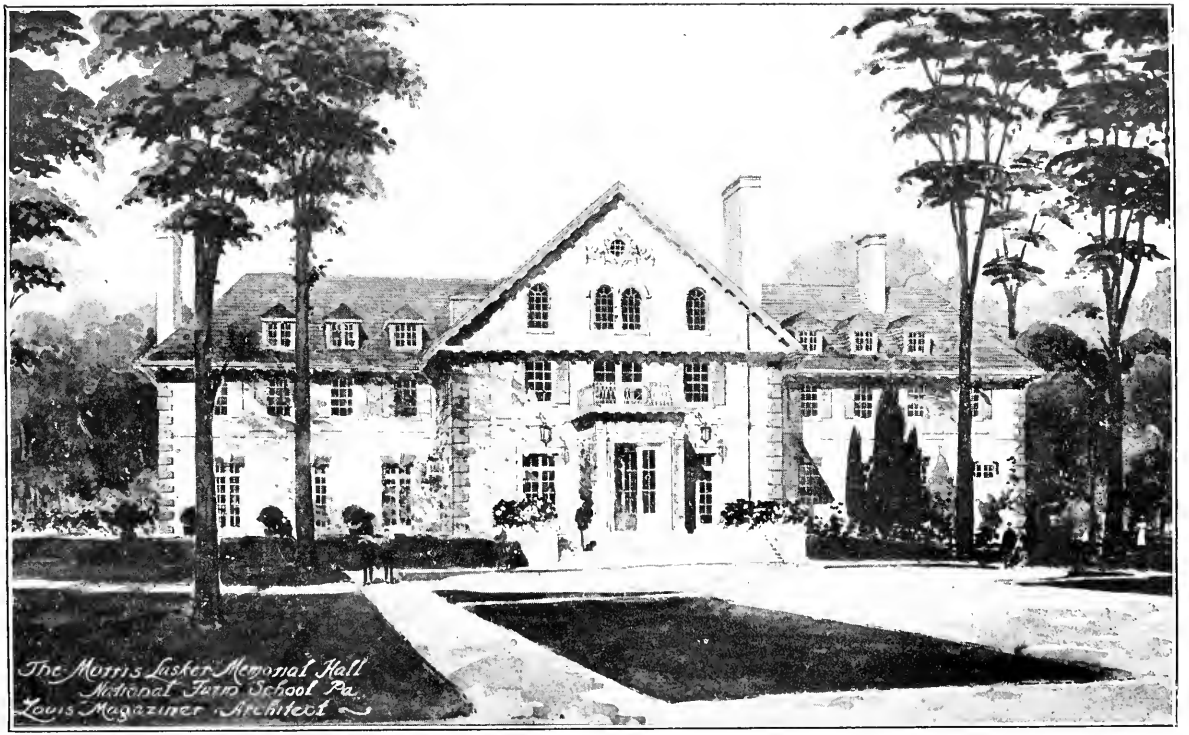
Thirty-five of our graduates are successfully operating their own farms. Forty-five are successfully operating agricultural estates of others. Eleven are herdsmen; fourteen are dairymen; nine horticulturists. A number of them are settled in different parts of our country as Veterinarians. Others are pursuing higher branches of scientific agriculture at the Penn. State College, Ohio State College, Maryland State College, Delaware State College, Cornell University, University of Michigan, University of Pennsylvania, and elsewhere.

Several of them have attained remarkable success as seed and bulb and tobacco growers.

Of all the graduates with whom this School is in touch more than 86% are actively and successfully engaged in agriculture.

SUCCESS OF UNDERGRADUATES AT SCHOOL.

We have dwelled, at some length, on the success which graduates of our School have attained in their noble calling, in different parts of our country. We may speak, with equal pride, of the good work done by our under-graduates at the School. In all the twenty years of the School's existence, we have probably never had a set of students more industrious, more studious, more in harmony with the spirit of the Institution and its aims, than those who attend at the present time. Probably the best



THE MORRIS LASKER MEMORIAL HALL

Erected on the grounds of The National Farm School, in Memory of Morris Lasker, of Galveston, Texas, by his Wife and Family index of their character, earnestness, labor, and patriotism may be seen in their voluntary resolution to do their "bit for their country" without interfering with the regular school duties, by rising daily one hour earlier than the required time, that is, at 4:30 instead of at 5:30, so as to raise extra food for the nation. This is no small sacrifice for lads, in the growing period of their lives, and who work hard all day long, yet they have adhered faithfully to this resolution ever since last spring. If they have departed from it at all, it was only to rise a quarter or a half an hour earlier than resolved upon. Of the work they have done in the class rooms and in the field, in dairy, greenhouse, barn, and laboratory, of these the Director will tell in his report. He will also speak to you of the crops harvested, of the improvements to our plant, and of the preparations being made at the present time for yet larger expansion.

WORK AND IMPROVEMENTS OF THE YEAR.

THE MORRIS LASKER MEMORIAL HALL.

But of one improvement, I must speak myself. You see a new building in course of construction, after plans prepared by Mr. Louis Magaziner, the architect, a building which, when completed, will be the finest structure thus far reared on these grounds, will be the very heart of this institution, for it will be its Domestic Hall. In it, all the domestic needs of the Institution will be accommodated. It will contain kitchen, dining room and reception room, laundry, clothes room and supply room, Director's quarters, Matron's quarters, quarters for several members of the Faculty, servants' quarters, students' locker room, wash room and waiting room, preserving-kitchen, root cellars, cold storage room and butcher shop. It will be large in area, up to date in its appointments, and of most attractive appearance, almost cottage-like in comfort, despite its size. Embowered as it will be in time, by trees, and surrounded by gardens, it will be the most inviting building upon our grounds.

And it well deserves to be, for it will memorialize one of the noblest men that ever lived, Morris Lasker, of sainted memory, a man, who, though he lived at a great distance, in far away Galveston, Texas, had part of his heart in this institution. He loved THE NATIONAL FARM SCHOOL. He believed in it. He saw in its work the only solution of one of the most vexing problems of the day, and he gave liberally of his means toward its support. When he was on these grounds, two years ago, he fully recognized the need of a Domestic Hall, and by means of his liberal donation, laid the foundation thereto. And when, shortly after his visit, he passed on, far, far too soon, for the good of his family and his fellowkind, his dear ones knew of no better place and no better way for commemorating his name than by providing the princely sum of $80,000, wherewith to rear this proud monument.

This is not the time to pay the tribute to Morris Lasker, of blessed memory, to his noble life, his many and magnificent philanthropies, his charming qualities, which he has so richly deserved. This will be done, and will be done well, when, God willing, the dedication of this building will take place on the first Sunday of next June, by distinguished fellow-townsmen of his, who lived and labored with him lovingly and faithfully.

You can readily imagine with what joy that day is looked forward to by one like myself who recalls the time, twenty years ago, when friends of an institution like this were few, and doubters and detractors many, when there were but a couple of dilapidated farm buildings upon these grounds, when our present grove was a jungle, and when, where you now see roads and drives and walks and gardens, you could see nothing but an ill-kept potato field.

OTHER NEEDED BUILDINGS WILL BE DONATED.

Verily, God has answered many a prayer of ours, fervently offered on these grounds and we have faith that yet other prayers of ours will be answered. The money will come forth with which to equip and furnish this new building, its kitchen, laundry, living rooms, etc. If we shall be privileged to live man's allotted years, we may yet see the cornerstone laid to the Mechanical Hall, so much needed here, so that lads may be trained in pursuits other than agriculture. We may see the rearing of a Girls' Annex to this School, where young women will be trained in the science and practice of horticulture, floriculture, dairying, poultrying, bee culture, orcharding, domestic science, and other branches. We may see the dedication of a Central Heating and Lighting Plant, of an Administration Building, of several Dormitories for the accommodation of hundreds of additional students. And even if but half of these hopes shall be fulfilled, even then we shall feel that we have not lived in vain.

FARM SCHOOL IS WINNING FRIENDS AND SUPPORTERS.

Slowly, but surely, our propaganda, costly as it is, is winning its way, is making ever newer friends for us, who rally nobly to our cause and give of their means towards its support. An institution, like ours, it must be remembered, labors under many disadvantages. It is not located in the heart of a great city, easily accessible to men and women of wealth. Neither is it devoting itself to a calling that is popular or readily appreciated by the general run of rich city people. An institution devoted to the care of the diseased, the orphaned, the homeless, the neglected, the depraved, easily arouses their sympathy and secures their aid. An institution like this, consecrated to preventive philanthropy, to such labors as shall make the need of the others, the mere palliative charities, unnecessary, makes no such direct appeal to them. Hence, the slowness of the progress of an institution like this. Hence, the costliness of our propaganda, obliging us to go to the people with our literature and personally appeal, seeing that but comparatively few people come to us.

They are coming, however, slowly, yet they are coming. Besides this handsome Lasker Building, we have received, during the past year, the following notable bequests and donations:

TWENTIETH ANNUAL SPRING EXERCISES

JUNE 3, 1917.

Amidst a throng of more than two thousand people, coming from practically every part of the country, the Twentieth Annual Spring Exercises of The National Farm School were held in an outdoor amphitheatre on the grounds of the institution, on Sunday, June 3d. The occasion marked the Annual Consecration of trees, planted on the School grounds during the year in memory of the departed, and in honor of various joyous occasions in the lives of friends of the School; as well as the formal installation of the Freshman Class of students.

Men who have studied the national and international food situation were the speakers of the day, and the keynote of their addresses was the serious business America has before it in feeding the world, and the great work an institution like The National Farm School is doing in training those who shall help to supply that food.

The programme included Dr. Alonzo E. Taylor, expert on nutrition in the Food Administration Department, at Washington; Mr. Gifford Pinchot, the apostle of forest conservation; Mr. Edwin Markham, author of "The Man with the Hoe," and other poems; former Governor Edwin Warfield, of Maryland; Dr. Joseph Krauskopf, Founder and President of The National Farm School, and Samuel Untermyer, Esq., of New York, eminent corporation counsel, who presided.

After an invocation by Rev. Montague N. A. Cohen, of Hazleton, Pa., Dr. Krauskopf, in an introductory address, reviewed the remarkable growth of the institution during its twenty years of existence.

Mr. Untermyer, in his address, struck a note of warning against the wastefulness of the American people. He then called attention to the work being done by the School and said in part:

"As I read the interesting history of this School, and note its accomplishments, the things that impress me most are the far-reaching wisdom of its founders and the rich crops of achievement that may be harvested as the results of their steadfast and untiring devotion. The existence and success of this School is conclusive, and a standing reproach to those who have insisted that the Jew flocks to the city by preference. We all know that the Jews have not been farmers in the older countries, because, for centuries, they have been denied the right to own and till the land; but, whenever the civil disabilities of the Jews have been removed, they have flocked to the farms in the same proportion as other races."

Mr. Markham, in an inspiring, poetic address, consecrated the Memorial and Festive Trees. He said in part:

"It is a pious and pleasant thing to commemorate friends and events with the living presence of a tree. The tree is a form that will everlastingly renew its youth and beauty and keep green the memory of man and deed. So it is fitting that with glad hearts and hands we go today to our tree-planting, in honor of the living and in memory of the dead.

"And more fitting is the memorial tree than the marble shaft or granite obelisk; for the tree has ever been the symbol of the persistence of life. In the winter of the year, the tree seems to feel the touch of death: it sheds its leaves, it shrinks into its bark, and its boughs look desolately to the sky. But with the first footfall of the spring, the spirit of God leaps into the tree, and in its branches there is life again, leaf again, love again.

"'And then the boughs that in the cold winter were only Bare ruined choirs where late the sweet birds sang,'

are again filled with bright winds and wings and warblings of happy song.

"Thus the tree is an eternal denial of death, and an eternal averment of immortality, a proclamation that life is at the heart of the universe. So a tree is most fitting as a memorial of our living friends yet walking under these skies, and of our departed friends who are walking under the invisible yet immortal skies, where noble spirits renew their faded youth."

Mr. Pinchot stated that, in its final analysis, the success of the war will depend entirely upon the farmers.

"Our one big mistake in this country," said Mr. Pinchot, "is our failure to realize the seriousness of the situation. England made that mistake and suffered. Another thing is that we have not been told just how badly food is needed in Europe. It may be just as well that some of the details are being withheld, but we must realize, and realize quickly, that the success of the war depends almost entirely upon the United States."

Ex-Governor Warfield delivered the address at the formal Installation of the Freshman Class of students. He addressed himself directly to the students and stated that the nation is looking to them to do their utmost in this present crisis.

Dr. Taylor, in a ringing message, impressed the audience with the grim fact that everywhere in the world there is a shortage of foodstuffs. That is due to the fact that millions of men have been withdrawn from agricultural pursuits. It is up to America to relieve this situation, and she can do so in three ways: She must increase production, she must cut down waste, and she must assure equitable distribution.

Dr. Taylor pointed out that it will be difficult to preserve food by the ordinary methods because of the difficulty of obtaining tin and glass for receptacles, but that drying machines are being placed on the market, which will effectually dry food, thus giving everyone an opportunity to cut down waste. He declared that dried food in Germany fed millions of men for six months and saved the situation for the empire while the rye crop was maturing.

"There is not going to be sufficient wheat," continued Doctor Taylor, "to give white bread as it is now demanded. Corn and rye are just as good food, except that they have not received the stamp of Anglo-Saxon civilization. If every family will agree to cut down the consumption of white bread on certain days in each week, millions of bushels of wheat can be saved."

Prizes were distributed to the students of the School for progress and efficiency in their work, the awards being made by the Director of the Farm School, Prof. Bernhard Ostrolenk.

At the close of the exercises the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Jacob Tarshish, of Allentown, Pa.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL SUCCOTH PILGRIMAGE AND CORNERSTONE LAYING OF THE MORRIS LASKER HALL

October 7, 1917.

Ideal autumn weather and exercises of more than the usual interest and attractiveness brought to the beautiful grounds of The National Farm School, on Sunday, October the 7th, what was perhaps a record-breaking attendance of the friends of the institution. The hundreds of persons who spent the day on the broad acres of the School, not only received a fine insight into the progress the students are making along agricultural lines, but were also rewarded by hearing addresses by speakers of national repute, including Congressman Julius Kahn, of California; George W. Norris, Farm Loan Commissioner of the Federal Farm Loan Bureau; Brigadier-General C. H. Lauchheimer, of the United States Marine Corps, Washington; Felix H. Levy, Esq., of New York, and Dr. Joseph Krauskopf, President and Founder of The National Farm School.

The occasion was the Twentieth Annual Succoth Pilgrimage, and was made notable by the cornerstone laying of the Morris Lasker Hall, with impressive Masonic Rites.

Felix H. Levy, Esq., of New York, presided and paid a glowing tribute to the work accomplished by the President of the School.

Brigadier-General Lauchheimer emphasized the importance of food production, saying:

"To fight successfully, four elements must combine to one end. These are men, munitions, food and money. Food is a military need, no question is of more importance. The deepest responsibility rests upon the farmers, the men who produce the foodstuffs which will be required, not only to feed our army, but to meet the demands of our allies. The work being accomplished at the Farm School cannot be overestimated—the young men in this institution are doing a work fully as important as that of any of those who shoulder the guns."

Commissioner George W. Norris was equally emphatic. He said:

"No success can come in either times of war or peace from an anaemic or underfed people, and it is essential to produce all that is possible from every available acre.

"Statistics will show that the value of all crops in 1916 in this country totaled about eleven billions of dollars, and that the 1917 crop will reach the immense total of not less than seventeen billions of dollars—a splendid showing that our farmers are realizing the seriousness of the conditions confronting us. The striking importance of the value of these crops lies in two factors—first, that the crop of 1917 is just about three and one-half times the value of all the mineral products of the country; and, secondly, that all of this has been 'produced by,' and not 'taken from.' In other words, all minerals taken from the ground constitute a depletion of the original supply; all this immense agricultural product is possible each year, and not only possible, but susceptible of increase in each successive year."

Congressman Julius Kahn, after paying a warm tribute to the achievements of Dr. Krauskopf, said, in part:

"Waste is the principal cause of the high cost of living. At this time there are grave responsibilities confronting us. We must all get together and work together for the welfare of the Nation, as a whole. After the immortal Washington had retired from the Presidency of the United States, there was a period when we had trouble with France. Congress bestowed upon him the rank of lieutenant general, and when he took command, he uttered a sentence the significance of which is apparent to us today, 'Agriculture is the basis of our whole social and economic structure.' Its importance at this time cannot be overestimated, and I congratulate you on the splendid success of your efforts toward obtaining greater results in the field of husbandry and in the immeasurable influence of your work throughout the Nation as a whole.

"We are going to win this war. We must win. Every citizen must do his part, even though it means sacrifice of the strongest type. This country deserves sacrifices from its citizens, and we can do no less than to make those sacrifices. We are fighting for one great principle—the right to sail the seas untrammeled. We have fought for it before, and we'll do it once more.

"Agriculture is the backbone of our national life, and the Farm School, in training its forces of young men, is strikingly 'doing its bit.'"

The ceremonies in connection with the cornerstone laying of the Morris Lasker Hall, in the afternoon, were deeply impressive, the exercises taking place in the partially constructed building. Former Lieutenant - Governor Louis A. Watres, Grand Master of the Pennsylvania Grand Lodge of Masons, officiated. He was assisted by Adolph Eichholz, Esq., Deputy Grand Master; William B. Hackenburg, Grand Treasurer, and twenty other Grand Officers of the Masonic Order. Music during the ceremonies was rendered by Mr. Harry Herzberg and his orchestra.

After the exercises of the cornerstone laying, Chairman Levy gave a history of the life and activities of the late Morris Lasker, of Galveston, Tex., to whose memory the new hall is being erected by his wife and family, who were also present at the exercises.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Krauskopf then delivered his Annual Message, which is published on pages 5 to 17 of this book.

During the day the trumpeters and drummers of Troop 92, of the Boy Scouts, entertained on the campus with martial music and drills.

Reports of the year's work were submitted by the Faculty of the School, and officers and members of the Board for the ensuing year were elected. At the conclusion of the regular programme prizes were awarded to students of the institution.

REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR.

In making my first annual report, I would first like to express a conviction that has become firmer with my closer acquaintance with The National Farm School. Even while a student of this institution, some ten years ago, I was thoroughly imbued with a faith in the future of agriculture, a faith which had its unquenching source in Dr. Krauskopf, and I persuaded my brother and many friends to enter this School who are now successfully engaged in this field.

My pre-occupation with my own career since leaving The National Farm School prevented my knowing much about its graduates, but since I have returned to the School, I have been thoroughly impressed with the value of the work of The National Farm School, not by abstract and theoretical discussion, but by actually seeing scores of men who had left this institution without any backing, money or influence, but with the practical and theoretical education in agriculture obtained here, stand on their own feet and make good.

Dr. Krauskopf, in his report, has spoken of many of them, yet I cannot help but feel that the point deserves reiteration. Proud as we all feel of the progress of The National Farm School, proud as we all are of its fertile fields, well filled barns, efficient departments, aggressive faculty and ambitious students, none of these so thoroughy marks The National Farm School in its full value as would an exhibition, were it possible, of the graduates of the School. Could our friends and supporters but visualize the important work these men are today doing for themselves and for their country, they would feel well repaid for every dollar and for every bit of time and energy they have given to The National Farm School. I only wish to add, in this connection, even while we can show a great deal of progress at the School from year to year, it seems to me that we have the foundation of equipment and organization only, and lack the funds to make this institution of the size where we could send out graduates by the hundreds, instead of by the scores. It is my firm conviction that, if The National Farm School could turn out every year one hundred young men trained in practical and theoretical agriculture, fired with an ambition to serve their country on the soil, we would change the aspect of the Jews in America within the next twenty-five years and a gathering, a quarter of a century from now, on our grounds, would have the agricultural outlook here as a center for mighty Jewish agricultural interests in the United States.

There is nothing at all that can prevent this growth of The National Farm School. Twenty years of existence has given the Board of Directors experience in the policy to be pursued in the conduct of such an institution, unique as it is. The high state of cultivation of our fields, and the thorough equipment of our departments enable us to give a more thorough and comprehensive training. The large number of applications from prospective students indicates a sincere desire on the part of young men of the cities to enter the field of agriculture. Had we twice the money for rnnning expenses that is now available, we could educate three times as many boys as we have now, as the overhead charges would remain constant. Our crying need is more funds for running expenses, and more room to house students.

In spite of the fact that we could reduce the per capita cost of educating our students by increasing the number of students, we are today educating students cheaper than does any other school of which we have records in the United States. My study of school finance, and my experience with it enable me to say that The National Farm School gives more nearly 100 cents value for every dollar invested than any other similar school in the country.

In reviewing the past year's work of the School, I desire to give particular credit to the able Faculty of the School who have so loyally co-operated with me, and to whom should go a lion's share of the credit for the splendid condition of our School.

Dr. Krauskopf has already spoken, in his report, of the splendid spirit of the student-body, their high morale and their ambition. It is their attitude in part that has enabled us this year to cultivate our farm so intensely and to report so successful a year, both from the standpoint of education and that of large crops harvested.

Throughout the year the education of the students has been kept paramount in the minds of our Faculty. This means that when a student has become proficient in plowing he is immediately given some other work to do and another student is set to plowing. The result is that our fields are constantly plowed by novices and that closer and more careful supervision has to be exerted. We maintained the same attitude in every other branch of the work. In spite of this, however, I have been told repeatedly that some of our corn fields this season were among the best corn fields in the County, and we need not in any way apologize for the appearance of our fields, the yield from our herds or the condition of our crops. In fact, our standard to have everything look even neater and better than is general on farms has been fully maintained.

The School has made some improvements during the past year, including the drainage of much of its wet land, building of some much needed farm houses on Schoenfeld Farm Number Three, and the installation of electric lights.

We are in particular in need of a new dairy building and agricultural laboratory for the purpose of giving instruction to larger classes in butter, ice cream and cheese making, and in judging oats, wheat, corn and cattle. Our Poultry Department needs considerable remodeling and enlarging, and progress along that line has been started. A classroom and laboratory facilities in connection with Horticulture is one of the great needs of the Horticultural Department. Increased dormitory space will be given to us to some extent with the erection of the Lasker Hall, but will in no way be adequate to meet the need of the institution. A new dormitory housing one hundred more boys would be a welcome gift.

During the past year, Mr. Cecil J. Toor has been added to the Faculty as head of the Poultry Department. Prof. Simon Marcovitch was appointed to fill the position made vacant by the resignation of Miss Lydia P. Borden. Miss Rebecca Churchman has ably taken charge of the Household Department since the resignation of Miss Edith Winkler. It is with much regret that I state that Prof. J. L. Campbell, who has been with us over a year and who earned for himself the love and respect of his co-workers and students has been called to the National Army and is now training at Camp Meade.

AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT

The year just past has had no unusual or remarkable features peculiar to farming. The usual sequences of to much wet and too much drought have given us opportunity to get ready to worry about what might happen, if either condition should continue much longer. Dry, cool weather in May enabled us to get our corn planted earlier than usual and the result is a large acreage and a good crop. However, the wet weather during June and July made it impossible to keep the weeds in subjection, and we had a big job pulling them out when the dry weather finally came in August. But the wet June was good for the transplanting of cabbage and few casualties occurred to the plants in their new homes. The crop, now, shows the effect of the good start it got in its youth, for both cabbages and calves need favorable conditions in their infancy, and, if they become strong and lusty during their first few weeks, it is easier to develop them to strong and profitable maturity.

The hay crop was an average crop, but as a money crop it has not held its own, as the price has remained low while that of other things has been rising.

Another good peach crop has been harvested this season. Special attention was given to the cultivation and fertilization of the orchard during the spring and early summer, and not only did we get our pay in a good crop, but the trees made splendid growth and have set a crop of buds for next year's fruit. We shall probably soon set out a new smaller orchard to take the place of this one, when it becomes decrepit as the large space now occupied by the trees can be used more advantageously for other crops. The crop this year yielded 2350 baskets of peaches, bringing in a cash income of something over $1000.

One thing is very easy nowadays: That is, the selling of good farm products. Of some crops we have a surplus after supplying the needs of our own establishment. Others we grow mainly for the instruction afforded our students, and then dispose of them at the regular market prices. Of the crops that we sell in this way, we rarely have enough to supply the demand and for a number of our products we have an established trade. We believe that it adds to the interest of the students in the crops we harvest, to know that they are to be put on the market in competition with others of like nature.

At last, we feel that we are on the road to the building of a pure bred herd of cattle. For many years, we have felt that we ought to have at least one herd of registered animals. We have, this year, purchased a nucleus for such a pure bred herd and we hope to see it grow into one in which we may take even more pride than we have done in the grade herds that have been a prominent feature on our farms.

The time has also come when a well-equipped farm as large as ours should have a tractor for furnishing power for plowing, and for other mechanical work, as well as for the instruction of our students, who, after graduation, will be expected to handle such farm implements in the various positions to which they are called. I shall present no further arguments in favor of so necessary a machine on the farm today, but hope that some good friend will supply the means to enable us to purchase one that will best suit our needs.

HORTICULTURAL DEPARTMENT

To the repeated suggestions of well-meaning individuals, that, during the war we convert all land (including that under glass) to the raising of vegetables and staples,—that we abandon, temporarily, the growing of flowers and ornamental plants, I would make the following reply:

The amount of land labor and equipment at our disposal is limited. Therefore, the highest duty we can perform will be so to farm this area as most efficiently to educate each student. To alter suddenly the policy of education to fit some impractical idea of food conservation, would be to develop a one-sided pupil and to lose the tangible results of years of horticultural effort.

While I am gratified by the financial returns from this department for the year, I can point with greater pride to the interest and enthusiasm displayed by those students who worked in the department.

It is my sincere hope that the Faculty, may soon be able to devote more time to actual pedagogy,—to personal instruction of individual students, to field discussions and demonstrations rather than to the absorbing problem of making both ends meet. This ideal, in my judgment, may be brought about by a larger endowment fund, permitting a larger teaching staff and domestic service.

Greenhouses: The gross receipts of the past season show an increase of nearly one hundred per cent. over those of 1916, despite the fact that the price of flowers has not advanced during that period. Most of this may be attributed to a good disposal of retail products and to a careful system of cost accounting of all greenhouse enterprises. As the School expands, we shall need more greenhouses, for the cold of winter never interferes with work and instruction under glass.

NURSERY: The receipts have fallen off slightly, in all probability due indirectly to unusual conditions abroad. Several thousand young shrubs were set out last spring, and are now in an excellent condition of growth. The department is seeking an outlet for large and shapely specimens of trees, shrubs, evergreens and vines at a very moderate figure.

VEGETABLE GARDEN: Despite a protracted drought, during the month of August, returns from the vegetable garden exceed those of any previous year. Ample storage space has been provided for several tons of root crops. Large quantities of vegetables and fruits for canning and preserving for winter use, were transferred to the Domestic Department.

STUDENT PROJECT GARDENS: The newspapers of New York, Philadelphia and other cities have devoted many a paragraph to a description and praise of these gardens and their caretakers. Some of the plots are several acres in area. The student keeps an account of all expenses (including the value of his own labor) and receipts, in order that he may have an accurate idea of the net profit of the venture.

The Department of Horticulture wishes to thank those of the student body, who, by their faithful work and sincere desire to learn, have helped in many ways successfully to carry out its purposes.

The following comparative report of this department covers a period of six years:

	1917	1916	Average of 1911 to 1915

DEPARTMENT OF BIOLOGY

The Department of Biology is at present housed in the recitation room of the main building. It is planned, upon completion of the Lasker Hall, to enlarge the floor space of this department, using one room for a museum. A place to keep a collection of birds, insects, plants, etc., is a very necessary part of a Biological Department, since it affords material for observation and study, the educational value of which is far superior to that merely obtained from books. A fine collection of Riker mounts, illustrating the life histories of our injurious insect pests, has already been made. We ought to have, in addition, a good collection of our useful birds, injurious rodents, and anatomical models to be used in class instruction. It is essential that the students see these forms of life in as near their natural state as possible and to visualize them, so that as soon as the animal or plant is seen in the field, it will be readily recognized.

It is also planned to start a systematic collection of insects, properly named and classified, so that forms can be readily identified by comparison.

Any donations of zoölogical specimens or plants to help build up our museum will be greatly appreciated, with the assurance that they will be properly installed and taken care of.

During the early fall and late spring, considerable time will be spent with the students in the field, seeing at first hand and collecting specimens of injurious insects and plant diseases, weeds and weed seeds. The laboratory work in Biology in the winter months will include studies in classification, metamorphosis, economic importance of animals, heredity and variation, blood examination, digestion, body control and the various mechanism, and reproduction.

In Entomology, the life histories of the injurious insects and methods of combating them is taken up, as well as a discussion of the various external and internal animal parasites of domestic animals.

In Botany a study of the flowering plants, weeds, weed seeds and seed testing will be made. A discussion of the various plant diseases common to Pennsylvania, and the practical methods for combating them will be taken up. In studying the various diseases, inoculations and Kock's rules of proof, will be conducted for brown gall, black rot of cabbage, black leg, and various other bacteria diseases as well as for the molds and fungi.

The department is also in need of a Binocular microscope.

REPORT OF FLORA SCHOENFELD MEMORIAL FARMS COMMITTEE

(Herbert D. Allman, Chairman.)

The Schoenfeld Farms can well be proud of their fruitful acreage for the year just past.

Farm No. 1 has been under the personal charge of Mr. Aaron Lieberman, a post graduate, and the yield is much larger and prices received much better than any previous year. The flow of milk has been particularly good. The corn crop is more than promising, the barn is stored full of hay and the silo is filled and prepared for the winter.

Farm No. 2 has had a peach crop, which has exceeded last year's production by over three hundred baskets. We have cleared more land, and put it into cultivation, securing therefrom a very good crop.

Farm No. 3 is, as usual, able to make a first-rate showing. Mr. Young, who lives on the place and is in charge, has exceeded his previous records of ability as a teacher, and efficiency as a manager. The crops have been very good. Both barn and silo are well filled with hay, silage and grain. Sundry improvements have been made, including a new garage, which was constructed by the students, themselves. About thirty new acres have been reclaimed and brought under cultivation.

I would like to state that, under the direction and supervision of Director Ostrolenk, these three farms are conducted along different lines, each forming a basis of teaching for our students.

The Fresh Air Camp for children, a very commendable institution for the poor of Philadelphia, under the supervision of the Young Women's Union, occupied a small farm house and about an acre of ground on Farm No. 3 during the summer. This caused us no inconvenience whatever, the expenses were all defrayed by the Young Women's Union, and the outing was certainly enjoyed by the many poor kiddies of the tenement-house districts.

In conclusion, I want to express my appreciation and thanks to the other members of my Committee and to the Faculty of the School for the earnest help and co-operation they have given me in the administration of these farms.

POULTRY DEPARTMENT

(Cecil J. Toor.)

Poultry in the past at The National Farm School has not received proper attention, due to the smallness of our plant and the lack of funds at the disposal of the Board of the School for erecting and equipping the kind of plant an institution like ours should have. As a consequence, our inadequate facilities have necessitated a limited amount of practical teaching, with the result that only a small number of students have been graduated with a real practical knowledge of poultry husbandry.

During the past year, however, a number of friends of our School have come forward and have contributed sums toward the larger plant we so greatly need. Accordingly, plans for the kind of plant we desired were drawn up to include a large brooder house, fifteen colony growing houses, and a laying house for one thousand hens and pullets; this house to contain an office, root cellar and grain room. These plans were approved and given to contractors for bids, but present high cost of building material and labor so inflated these bids that part of our plans have been abandoned for the present. We are, however, going ahead with the brooder house, which we are building ourselves, with the assistance of our students, giving us a three-fold advantage: First—A saving of money due to elimination of overhead charges, and the use of our own lumber and labor. Second—As an educational feature; teaching of carpentry, concreting, etc. Third—Getting what we want and how and when we want it. A start has been made and work will continue during the winter.

THE LIBRARY

(Simon Marcovitch, Librarian.)

The Library is fairly well equipped for supplying the needs of the students along educational and agricultural lines. A general subject and author card index, and the index of publications of the State Experiment Stations, is being made available for the students. It is hoped to get as many Station Bulletins as possible properly filed, so as to be of assistance to the students.

The Librarian and those in charge are always ready and glad to give whatever assistance they can in connection with reference work of the students.

At present there is a lack of some good up-to-date fiction, which is greatly needed, as well as more books on Agriculture, Physiology and Hygiene.

REPORT OF THE LADIES' EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

(Mrs. A. M. Klein, Chairman.)

The ladies of the Auxiliary Board of The National Farm School have visited the School at frequent intervals during the year in accordance with the schedule arranged by Mrs. M. Fleisher, Chairman of the Visiting Committee.

They have co-operated with Miss Abraham, the Matron, and Miss Churchman, the Housekeeper, under whose interested supervision the household is being run comfortably and smoothly.

A very large quantity of the vegetables and fruit grown on the farm has been conserved for winter use, at a minimum expense.

The Sewing Circle, under Mrs. R. B. Schoneman's able management, is actively engaged in restocking the linen-room shelves.

The work of the household has been greatly hampered in the past by lack of space and inadequate facilities. These difficulties, however, will be overcome when the Morris Lasker Hall is ready for occupancy. We look forward with deepest interest to the completion of this new building, whose commodious quarters and modern equipment will supply all our requirements.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT

(Hetty Abraham, Matron.)

The closing year finds us in excellent condition, and anxious to excel the good work of former years.

The entire household is watching the building progress of the Morris Lasker Hall with much enthusiastic interest and gratitude, knowing that the long-ago outgrown and makeshift facilities with which this department has been hampered are soon to be replaced by up-to-date and commodious quarters, and we wish to express our heartfelt thanks to the family of the late Morris Lasker for making possible the realization of this long hoped for and greatly needed Domestic Hall.

This year, more than ever before, there has been strenuous effort to conserve everything grown on the farm. More than a thousand quarts of fruits and vegetables have been canned; large quantities of products have been dried; and eggs have been preserved in the usual scientific manner.

Frequent visits from the Ladies' Auxiliary Board of the School have been helpful to the matron and her assistants.

THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

(CHARLES HORN, '06, Secretary.)

A must enthusiastic Alumni Association meeting and banquet were held on Saturday, June 7, 1917, at the Monument House, Doylestown, Pa. There were present over forty graduates, a number of whom came from a long distance to attend.

Mr. Bernhard Ostrolenk, of the Class of '06, Director of The National Farm School, was introduced to the members of the Association. He made an address and outlined his policy for the training of the students and the development of the School. He urged closer relationship between the graduates and their alma mater and assured those present that there was always a ready welcome for any of them at their alma mater. The graduates pledged their co-operation and aid to the Director to help him carry out his program in placing The National Farm School in the front rank it deserves.

At the banquet, which followed the meeting, a short sketch was given by each one present of his experience in his chosen profession, either as manager in some particular branch of agriculture, or as owner of his own farm, as well as reports from those graduates who are at present specializing at college.

Charles Horn, the Secretary, made a splendid report of the large percentage of the graduates in agriculture, especially of those who are on their own farms, as well as of those who are attending the various agricultural colleges. He reported that a number of graduates are co-operating with organizations throughout the country to instruct and encourage people to produce food on war gardens. The following officers of the Association were elected:

President, James Work, '13; Vice-President, Edward Schlessinger, '13; Secretary-Treasurer, Charles Horn, '06.

The next annual meeting and banquet will be held on June 1, 1918, at the Monument House, Doylestown, Pa., and from various reports and efforts exerted by the members representing each graduating class, the affair is very much looked forward to. Each class is asked to have as many representatives present as possible.

Have The National Farm School Plant A Tree For You

There is no more beautiful custom than that of planting a tree to commemorate an event or to perpetuate a memory. The National Farm School has planted more than 2000 of such Memorial or Commemorative Trees for its friends along the roadway of its grounds. In a few years, when these trees will have matured, one will be able to pass through several miles of shaded lanes, with the thought that each tree represents to someone an important event or a hallowed memory.

We have planted these trees for births, birthdays, confirmations, graduations, weddings, successes, anniversaries, and in memory of departed dear ones.

When an event occurs in your family, be it what it may, let The National Farm School plant a tree on its grounds to commemorate it. The expense to you is what you choose to give. The tree may bear your name as donor, or the name of the one for whom donated. Each tree is plainly and permanently marked with a large steel card.

Your contribution, besides giving you the satisfaction which every generous deed does, will help The National Farm School financially, and will serve as a permanent gratification to your family and friends. You will know that, somewhere on The National Farm School grounds (where lads from all parts of the United States are trained free of charge to them for tuition, board, lodging, and other necessities, in practical and scientific agriculture, so that they may find success and happiness as producers, and inspire countless others to forsake the cities and go "Forward to the Soil"), there stands a growing tree in recollection of an event that was once very impressive to you.

You can arrange for planting a tree by writing to the office of The National Farm School, 407 Mutual Life Building, Philadelphia.

"He that planteth a tree is a servant of God,
He provideth a kindness for many generations,
And faces that he hath not seen shall bless him."

AN APPRECIATION

The following letter, entirely unsolicited, attests the high character of our work.

"My Dear Mr. Gutekunst:

"Please accept my sincere thanks for the photographs you have made of me, and which have just reached me. They are certainly a magnificent likeness, and well attest the fact that the hand that has delighted Philadelphia with its art for the past half century has not lost its cunning.

"Trusting that kind Providence may spare you to us and to your art yet many a year in health and good cheer, I am,

Very appreciatively yours,

"JOS. KRAUSKOPF."

Noted Scientists Approve of Gas Lighting

Scientific experiments by noted investigators prove that gas lighting improves the air for breathing purposes by helping ventilation, destroying germs and adding necessary moisture.

Scientists also know that modern gas light is best for the eyes, because it is so soft, mellow, free from glare and harmful color rays.

The Bureau of Standards, at Washington, refers in detail to the economy and quality of gas mantle light in a report entitled "Measurements for the Household".

See the display of modern gas lights at any of our Philadelphia showrooms.

Grind Whole Wheat

For Health and Economy. Cut down in food bills. Eat real whole cereals. not a millers' mixture.

Manufactured graham flour does not usually contain the outer skin of the kernel known as bran because it is lost in converting it into flour. The bran is an essential to the flour because it contains the digestive qualities of the grain. To be able to obtain it freshly ground adds greatly to its nutrition and reduces its cost 50 per cent. This can be done on the QUAKER CITY MILL. You can grind (fine or coarse) wheat, corn, rye, peanut butter, nuts, vegetables, cocoa, spices, etc.

Price $4.80 C. O. D. if desired; together with 350 receipt HEALTH Cook Book. Fully guaranteed.

Don't Rent or Buy a House Unless it is Wired for Electricity

YOU wouldn't rent or buy a house that did not have running water or an adequate heating system.

Neither can you afford to live in a house without an adequate and economical lighting system. Electric lighting is, all things considered, the most economical, if you use

Mazda Lamps

By equipping all your sockets with Mazda lamps, you get three times as much illumination for the same money, to say nothing of the improved quality of the light. Remember that our Lighting Service Department is at your disposal, without charge or obligation, in planning the illumination of your home or any building in which you are interested.

If your house is not wired for Electricity, you will be interested in our deferred payment wiring plan. Send for the details
